Project Brief

It is a site that aims to improve the employment system for companies through the job seeker submitting a job application on the site,Then set an appointment for the interview by the company,Then respond with approval or rejection of employment without the need to go to the company or print any documents.

The site targets companies, institutions and job seekers, as companies in turn enter the site and register as a company looking for employees and enter the required job name, skills and experiences required.

As for job seekers, they register on the site and add all personal data in addition to inserting personal documents such as an ID photo and academic certificates, and then adding a CV.

The jobs appear to people who are interested in this job or to people who fit their specialties.

When the applicants reach the number specified by the company, all applicants are contacted for a personal interview. Candidates are selected for the job based on the interview, and then the company is authorized to access the applicants 'personal files and official documents.

In the end, this site has helped job seekers to find a job without having to leave the house, pay transportation fees or print any paper documents.
